

LABOUR STANDARDS CONSULTANCY AND TRAINING

Social responsibility can be difficult to grapple with. In many ways it's very simple – putting people at the centre of your decision-making and acting in the interests of society at large. But where do your responsibilities begin and end? What is the minimum you should be doing? What's realistic? And, if you have an appetite for it, how could you become a leader in this area?

NSF has a long history in social responsibility and can help you on the journey through consultancy, training and risk assessment services.

Working in agriculture?

We can offer you GRASP, the GLOBALG.A.P. Risk Assessment on Social Practice. Designed to complement GLOBALG.A.P. certification, GRASP has helped 50,000+ producers to date upgrade their good social practices, assess their social management systems and demonstrate their compliance to their buyers.

Not sure where to start or how to prioritise?

We can offer support, advice, awareness raising and training courses to help get you started.

Unsure of your legal obligations for Modern Slavery?

Regardless of where you operate, if you have a presence in the UK and your business has a global turnover of over £36m, you must comply with the Modern Slavery Act (2015). We can guide you through requirements of the act and help you prepare your Modern Slavery Statement.

If you would like to do more to tackle modern slavery, we can connect you to Stronger Together, a business-led initiative providing free pragmatic resources, specialist guidance and a range of interactive training options. With over 1300 employers and labour providers engaged across the world. Stronger Together informs and equips businesses to deter, detect and deal with modern slavery within their business and international supply chains.

Looking for a programme for your suppliers?

We can introduce you to Fast Forward, a labour standards improvement programme driving a step-change in legal and ethical compliance in supply chains. The Fast Forward programme is supported by a growing number of leading brands working together to tackle worker exploitation and build more sustainable supply chains.

Thinking of engaging with Sedex?

Sedex is one of the world's leading organisations helping companies manage responsible sourcing in their supply chain. Sedex has 50,000 members in 150 countries and has gathered over 280,000 audits worldwide.

We can help you engage with Sedex, guiding you through the registration process, assisting you with your self-assessment, or conducting your SMETA (Sedex Members Ethical Trade Audit) for you.

Do you use or supply temporary or agency labour?

Agency supplied labour is coming increasingly into focus - both its supply and use within business and supply chains. Embedding responsible recruitment practices is vital to uphold labour standards in supply chains and mitigate risks to workers. We can introduce you to Clearview - the global certification scheme for labour providers and a whole host of support through the Responsible Recruitment Toolkit. NSF is the sole Scheme Manager for Clearview globally.

Have your own bespoke systems but need support?

We can offer consultancy according to your needs.
